

Chrissy's Portfolio Presentation

Crystal Jade Maria Knight

A brief Biography

Crystal 🍌 I'm 24 for now, and I love all things creative. I am going to be a front end developer! I have always had a big influence in my life and passions As both a female and member of the LGBTQ+ community. Tech had always drawn me in from a young age (it has nothing to do with being a millennial) and things such as toasters. Therefore tech was always something that was drawn to me and so it made

What do I do in my spare time? Find out here!

I write!

I'm a gamer!

I stream!

I cook!

I love photography museums and history! of the most important things for me whether it be in work or everyday life is the ability to be myself and not, but you only live once, and to hide my personality from the world is not something I wish to

A piece of my writing

wanted and then the bigger things seem impossible, to live in the shadows, is to live without light shine"

Design Decisions/ Process

I decided to keep it basic for a few reasons;

- 1) Usability: People with sensory overload or visual overload issues could face potential issues when viewing if there was too much stimuli.
- 2} focusing on simple designs to not deter from what it was I was doing in the portfolio.
- 3) Making it functional was my main priority.
- 4) I added a bit more personality to showcase I have a life outside of coding, (links to some of my websites/ hobbies)

GOOD VS Bad

Challenges

The challenges I faced came in many, some quicker to fix than others.

- Trying to figure out what to put on the portfolio was the hardest part I think, as I don't have a lot of work experience.
- I think while also the feeling of vulnerability displaying on a portfolio as well was quite intimidating.

Favorite parts

Some of the fun parts were getting to display personality and getting to know my self a bit better in the process.

THANK YOU

Any Questions??